

World Health Summit Regional Meeting 2024, Australia, Melbourne

The World Health Summit Regional Meeting 2024 will take place from April 22-24 in Melbourne, Australia.

Host of the meeting will be Monash University, a founding member of the M8 Alliance, the academic backbone of the World Health Summit.

Presidents of the Regional Meeting 2024 and International Presidents of the World Health Summit 2024 are Sophia Zoungas, Head, School of Public Health and Preventive Medicine, and Christina Mitchell, Dean, Faculty of Medicine, Nursing & Health Sciences of Monash University, Australia.

The Regional Meeting 2024 will focus on shaping the future of health across Asia and the Pacific. Over three days, leaders from diverse sectors, disciplines and cultures will share knowledge, catalyze new partnerships, inspire new research opportunities, and explore policies that can deliver measurable and meaningful impacts on health outcomes. Participants will be challenged to consider the questions: What would it take to achieve and sustain better health and wellbeing for people in the Asia-Pacific over the next 5-10 years? What are the strengths to build on? And what are the systems that need to change or evolve?
